

The National Guard Shooting in DC appears to have been Staged

by Miles Mathis

November 28, 2025

Just my opinion, based on easy internet research anyone could do

As usual I waited a couple of days to hit this one, hoping others would do the first round of research for me. And in this case they did. Zerohedge has already compiled some of the early research, showing the “Afghani” shooter Lakanwal is a CIA agent or asset. Turns out he is or was Special Forces working for a CIA counterterrorism unit. Even the mainstream press has now admitted he was CIA. The CIA itself has confirmed it. Amusingly, Zerohedge and most of these other researchers still purposely misread that, implying the attack in DC was real and that Lakanwal went rogue or was hired by bad guys. But of course any real researcher's first assumption would be that the CIA ran the event in DC, not as an attack on National Guard, but as a false flag to generate sympathy for the National Guard, ICE, and Trump. My assumption, until proven false, is that the attack was staged and that no one died or was injured. It is just more of the same vaudeville we have seen a million times from CIA, Air Force, FBI, Special Forces, and everyone else in government. They literally have nothing better to do with your taxdollars.

Although DC has cameras mounted every ten feet in that area, the 10-second video they have released is from citizen cell phone in a car and shows nothing. What it does show looks staged. The fatality is given as US Army Specialist Sarah Beckstrom, 20, and weirdly the only pic we get of her is a computer-licked selfie:

A female soldier with plucked eyebrows. Strange there is no background there. There is a ghost (aura) around her head and phone and something has been removed to the right. So this is some sort of CGI paste. If she is National Guard/Army, she should have an official photo on file.

They have now faked this one as well:

20-YEAR-OLD SPECIALIST SARAH

That one also looks like a paste or AI disaster, since the words are again mirrored like a selfie, but it isn't a selfie. The background is again some sort of CGI mist, with that black shadow behind her making no sense. It blurs off in a strange way. And the hat looks pasted on. Her eyes are distorted as well, with one slanting up and the other not. Her mouth is slanted in a strange way as well. Only a computer would pass this as reality.

They have now flipped that image:

But with the greater resolution the background looks even more fake. You can now see the image of a car in the white area, which I can't make sense of. I guess the black is supposed to be the seat and head rest, and the white is a rear window? But that would put that car in the back seat. Unless she is in the back seat, which makes that rear window huge and that car in the trunk. Where is she, in the Pope-mobile? Why would they be relying on some snap from a backseat, anyway? She should have official photos.

This admission from the Daily Mail is also telling:

DC US Attorney Jeanine Pirro said that she believed the two 'were sworn in' to National Guard duty 'less than 24 hours before they were shot on the street.'

Almost as if they were brought in from actors equity just for this scene, eh?

Radaris has no listing for Sarah Beckstrom of Webster Springs, WV, or DC, though FastpeopleSearch does.

Her father Gary said this:

“I’m holding her hand right now,” her father, Gary Beckstrom, said when reached Thursday. “She has a mortal wound. It’s not going to be a recovery.” That was all he would say.

That's doesn't read right, since almost anyone who doesn't die of a gunshot immediately and makes it to a hospital alive has a chance of recovery. And a father normally believes in a chance of recovery when he is holding a living hand.

West Virginia Governor Patrick Morrisey said Beckstrom's death was 'not the result we hoped for, but it is the result we all feared.'

That's also a strange comment. It doesn't really sound human and I suspect it was scripted by ChatGPT.

Of course it is also strange that Rahmanullah Lakanwal was not killed in this attack, since he was outnumbered by the entire National Guard. You would assume that anyone who attacked the National Guard by himself would be killed. Instead it appears he was not even seriously injured. This CIA agent attacked the entire US Army with a single revolver and no other weapons, no vest, no helmet, no mask, nothing. Sweats and sneakers. How likely does that sound?

How do you like that fake photo? Check out his sweater! Looks like wallpaper, with no thickness. Was that cut out with round-tip scissors and glued on with Elmer's glue-all by a five-year-old? Or was it done by AI, same diff. LIFE.ru has now released this one as well:

I just noticed the photographer there: Brian Fantana. Isn't that Paul Rudd's character from Anchorman? And let's see, wasn't he a cameramen, photographer? Yep.

In Russia they spell Lakanwal's name Laqanwal. And why would he be naked? Where was that shot from? The roof of the ambulance? Notice that he has no injuries, after attacking the entire US Army. I think the CIA may be overfeeding him.

Turns out he has a brother (let me guess, a twin?) who also served in the same elite CIA platoon. His first name has not yet been released. Trump has promised to pause immigration from all third-world countries like Afghanistan in response to this event. Then where will the CIA get its patsies and actors from?

We are told he drove in from Washington state, but the big computers have no record of him or his family there. In fact, Instantcheckmate returns no listing for that name nationwide. Radaris returns no results for Rahmanullah Lakanwal, Laqanwal. FastpeopleSearch returns no results. Intelius lists no results. However, there are very few people of this surname in the US, so Lakanwal is likely related to Abdul Lakanwal, 80, of Minnesota and now Santa Clarita, CA, an Afghani cabinet minister in the 1980s and US stooge. He has a doctorate from the University of Hohenheim, Germany, and worked in the 1970s for the West German International Development Agency, also an Intel front. He defected to the US in 1988 and we gave him citizenship.

This tells me they have probably changed the first name of the current Lakanwal, to prevent further identification. This way he can better hide when this blows over. They will be pretend this Rahmanullah is in jail, but he will still be a free agent under some other first name. For instance, Instantcheckmate lists a Khalid Lakanwal from this family, but he too is a ghost. He comes up in the listing of Abdul, but has no listing of his own. So our current agent could live on under the name Khalid.

With more digging, I found this Khalid Lakanwal of this family at LinkedIN, as Executive Director of Wells Fargo in Los Angeles, so I don't know why he doesn't come up in a search at Instantcheckmate. To be clear, I did not link him to the current event or to Rahmanullah, since I found no evidence Rahmanullah even exists. But I did link him to Abdul Lakanwal via his locations and that Instantcheckmate listing.

The other victim is given as Air Staff Sgt. Andrew Jason Wolf/Wolfe, 24, of Martinsburg, though they can't seem to agree on the spelling of his last name. Wolfe is a red flag name, as my readers know, and this photo is already suspicious:

If these are other soldiers, why pixelate their faces? What do they have to hide? He isn't a criminal and neither are they. But if they are soldiers, why are they dressed differently than him? If they aren't soldiers, why are they being photographed with him on base? I would assume from that they are CIA or other covert ops.

According to Instantcheckmate, his father is Jason Wolfe, and he is listed at LinkedIn as a sheriff's deputy, Berkeley County, though other places try to hide that by claiming he is a handyman. He also has some link to Palm Beach County Sheriff's dept. Andrew's wife or sister would appear to be Ashlyn Irving/Hoak, 28. His mother is Melody Wolfe and she said:

It feels like a nightmare and this doesn't feel real," Melody Wolfe stated.

OK.

According to Radaris, these Wolfes are closely related to Charles Wolfe of Las Vegas, NV, and Philipsburg, PA, a corporate director at Noble Americas Corp, a subsidiary of Noble Group. Possibly Jason's father. Yandex AI confirms he was a director there until 2013, though the link to his LinkedIn page is broken. A link to bearsofficialsstore.com is also a deadend, no longer existing. So he has been recently scrubbed, possibly due to this current event.

Charles is listed as deceased, so that address is old, I assume, which is why I don't black it out. That Jason Wolfe takes us to Martinsburg, WV, and Melody Wolfe. The Melody Hicks listed there is also Melody Wolfe and Melody Komara, same age as Andrew's mother, but she is said to live in Las Vegas, not WV. So possibly Radaris is conflating here, but if so it is not my mistake. I just report what I find. Her oldest address is from Ohio.

And in other news, a 1:18 minute recruitment video for Airborne psychological warfare has been leaked or released out of Ft. Bragg, bragging that they are ubiquitous and all-powerful. See the image above under title, which comes from that video. Given the timing, they may be claiming credit for this current event, though you would expect it to have come from a base nearer DC. Regardless, it is another self-inflicted wound, outing themselves over and over without need, so it should have never been made. Notice for instance the fake tank, which bolsters my claim the warheads you see are dummies as well. And these ghosts aren't really covert once they have told you where they are and what they are doing. They now have their own Facebook podcast. So we can now watch them shoot themselves in the foot in real time. These overconfident guys are the best players on my team.

And Mr. Beast has just sold out to the Rockefeller Foundation, proving again he is a government propagandist. See this guest paper from last year for more on that.
