

The Laken Riley Event

looks like another Government Hoax

by Miles Mathis

March 2, 2024

[Update November 24: As if we didn't already have enough evidence this was fake, they just keep dropping big clues on us. The one that came out today is that the fake murderer Ibarra was given a free airline ticket from New York to Atlanta for some reason in September of 2023. If you wondered how he got there, now you know. That was just five months before the fake event. To cover the obvious conclusion he was an actor being flown in for his part in this theater, they try to cover it by saying the free ticket was a “humanitarian flight” issued to him by the immigration center at Roosevelt Hotel in Manhattan. He didn't even have a job lined up, he just wanted to go south to look for different employment (though he was allegedly already employed in New York—more than most recent immigrants at Roosevelt can say). After the trial, many people keyed on that as strange and started asking questions, but the government is refusing to answer them. Senator Marshall had requested DHS head Majorkas and FBI head Wray to publicly testify before Congress on this strange event, but after agreeing to do so, both failed to show. So apparently this fraud is unwinding even in the mainstream press, though I don't expect it will go much further than this.]

[Update November 23, 2024: The trial has already finished. That was fast. Fast because—yep, you guessed it—it was a bench trial, with no jury. It took less than four days. The defense not only waived their right to a jury trial, they requested a bench trial. Proving this was another fake, run in a dummy court. You shouldn't be able to get a bench trial for first-degree murder, but I guess we are supposed to believe you can, if your lawyer is stupid enough. But since this attorney was state-assigned, the judge should have replaced him once he requested a bench trial. Any real judge would know the attorney was insane, and replace him if not disbar him immediately.

On May 8, 2024, a grand jury in Clarke County indicted Ibarra with ten charges: three charges of felony murder,[39] malice murder, false imprisonment, kidnapping, aggravated assault with intent to rape, hindering a 911 call, concealing the death of another[7] and peeping Tom.[21][2]

That's from Wiki. They are testing your stupidity even there. Four charges of murder? But there was only one fake victim: how can you be charged four times for the same thing? And with four charges of murder, I don't really think you need to tack on a peeping Tom charge.

The Judge was H. Patrick Haggard. You can read about him in this article at CNN, which is more of the usual bullshit. He presided over the 2012 trial of cop-killer Jamie Hood, so I guess we can mark that one fake as well. Note that CNN tells you Hood represented himself, then two short paragraphs later quotes Newell Hamilton, part of Hood's defense team. Contradiction. If Hood represented himself, it means he didn't have an attorney, so he had no defense team. They are always testing you and you are always failing.

They then admit Judge Haggard had clear bias in that case, since a black man killed his father and Hood was black. He should have recused himself, as Hood points out. Hood's request for a different judge should have been granted on that basis. But it wasn't, proving this trial was faked. They tell you straight to your face, knowing you won't get it.

And we have the same problem we always find in these fakes: the district attorney isn't involved in this Laken Riley case, although it is allegedly the most high profile case to ever hit the county. Deborah Gonzalez is the DA, but she isn't involved. She handed this off to a prosecutor named Sheila Ross. Who is Sheila Ross? Well, she isn't a deputy or assistant DA in those counties, we are told she is a prosecutor from the Prosecuting Attorneys Council, whatever that is. Prosecuting theatrical, I guess.

And who was assigned defending Ibarra? Well, we see three defenders seated at his table, two men and one woman. Dustin Kirby, John Donnelly, and Kaitlyn Beck. Of course the question is where did Ibarra get three defenders? The state will assign him one, not three. And it just triples the absurdity, since we are expected to believe all three of these defenders are morons, not realizing their only hope was a jury trial? Dustin Kirby isn't a defender for Athens, GA. He is in private practice and isn't free, so we aren't sure why he is here. Ibarra shouldn't have been able to afford private defenders. His LinkedIN profile is contradictory, since it lists him as a current public defender, but if you scroll down you see he hasn't worked as a public defender in that circuit since 2009.

We have the same problem with the judge, since the chief judge of Western Judicial Circuit is Eric Norris, not Haggard. But Norris didn't want this case? He doesn't want to be famous?]

First thing, look Laken Riley up at Instantcheckmate:

The screenshot shows the Instantcheckmate website interface. At the top, it says "Incredible! 2 Matches Found - Select Your Result Now" with a green downward arrow. Below this is a "Modify Search" button. The results are presented in a table-like format with columns: NAME, AGE, LOCATION, and POSSIBLE RELATIVES. The first result is for Laken Riley, Woodstock, GA, with a verified name match and age match (18-29). The second result is for Lakenya Dalaine Riley, Spring, TX, with a verified name match and age match (18-29). A yellow warning box for the second result states: "Possible Criminal or Traffic Records associated with the name Lakenya Riley found!".

NAME	AGE	LOCATION	POSSIBLE RELATIVES
Laken Riley WOODSTOCK, GA		Woodstock, GA	Allyson Phillips
Verified name match: Laken Riley Verified age match: Age 18-29
Lakenya Dalaine Riley SPRING, TX	51	Spring, TX Farmington Hills, MI Southgate, MI Houston, TX Brownstown, MI Rockwood, MI Trenton, MI Thomaston, GA	Gloria Keliher Kenya Riley
Possible Criminal or Traffic Records associated with the name Lakenya Riley found!
Verified name match: Laken Riley Verified age match: Age 18-29

The first result is her, since Allyson is given as her mother in press reports. But why is her alleged father John Riley not on her list? Why no age, which should be 22? Why only one location? Just so you know, Woodstock is not the same as Athens, where she allegedly died. It is north Atlanta. And why doesn't the big computer know she is living in Athens? She has allegedly been there for years. Institutional records like college records are among the easiest for computers to pull up.

Then there is the problem of that second result. Looks like they borrowed the name of a black lady, since Lakenya is an African name. And notice the small print below, where the computer is telling us it has both a name and age match. I had entered that age range 18-29, since I knew it going in. But if the computer matched the age range, why does it say Lakenya is 51? It seems like someone came in and inserted that age recently, but the computer knows it is wrong. We can broaden the search on Lakenya Riley to the whole US, where we find two more, one in Arkansas, and one, Lakenya Cherelle Riley, age 26, in Victorville, CA. So she would be in the right age range. But she has been scrubbed of all relatives, a big red flag. Victorville is just north of LA, on the road to Barstow. Which means? Could be connected to Edwards AFB. Best guess is they borrowed this girl's name from a fellow agent in the project, a black girl. We have caught them doing things like that many times. They love these inside jokes, especially with names.

I expected Intelius to give the same results, but they have Laken Riley listed three times, once with no age, once at age 22, and once at age 20. In all three she is from Woodstock. In the first two she is related to Allyson and John, but in the third one she is mysteriously related to other people.

The screenshot displays four search results from Intelius, each featuring a fingerprint icon and a 'BEST RESULT' label. The results are as follows:

Name	Age	Location	Relatives
Laken Riley		Woodstock, GA	Allyson Phillips
Laken Riley	22	Woodstock, GA	John Phillips Allyson Phillips William Riley
Lakenya Dalaine Riley	51	Spring, TX	Gloria Keliher Kenya Riley
Laken Riley	20	Woodstock, GA	Janet Riley Vincent Riley Teresa Mcfetridge

Additional details for the third result (Lakenya Dalaine Riley, age 51):

- Possible Criminal or Traffic Records associated with the name Lakenya Riley found
- Locations: Spring, TX; Farmington Hills, MI; Southgate, MI; Houston, TX; Brownstown, MI; Rockwood, MI; Trenton, MI; Thomaston, GA; Lawrenceville, GA; Woodhaven, MI; Flat Rock, MI; Sterling Heights, MI; Southfield, MI

So there are two young Laken Rileys from Woodstock and only Woodstock? Impossible. Who are these other relatives? We'll start with Teresa Mcfetridge. Sounds like another fake name, doesn't it? Well, it may be, since a search on that name in Georgia pulls up about ten people in the same age range, 50-70, who all look like they may be the same agent. Only one is related to Rileys, and she is not linked to Georgia at all. She is from Texas and Virginia, including Virginia Beach and Kingsville. Kingsville is King Ranch, a huge red flag. She is related to Beltrans and Hennings. She is related twice to a Riley Mcfetridge, which is probably the same woman again. In another listing she is aka Theresa Abraham, that being a Jewish surname, of course. A Google search on Teresa McFetridge finds the Texas one in Galveston, working for the Army Corps of Engineers. Her LinkedIN profile admits she was Navy for 30 years. I remind you she is the one definitely linked to these Rileys. And what else is in Kingsville? That would be NAS Kingsville, Naval Air Station.

Janet Riley is aka Janet Mcfetridge, and she is also from La Marque, TX, an outlier of Galveston. Big Navy port. Also Virginia Beach again, ditto. Laken Riley is on her list, and she is about the same age as Teresa.

Vincent Riley may be her grandfather, William Vincent Riley, since he has a son William. Which reminds us to look up William Riley, Laken's father. No William Riley of Georgia or Texas or the entire US is listed related to a Laken. We do find William Jason Riley, age 52, of Woodstock and Dacula, related to Allyson, but not to Laken. So the big computer has never heard of these primary relationships. His other relatives are listed as Brenda and Jennifer. Brenda would appear to be his mother, age 79, and she links us to a Denise Lindsey, which could be a clue. The Lindseys are big peers. She is also a Riley, so probably William's sister. She married Derron Lindsey, and they also link to Grahams, doubling my initial bet. The Grahams are also big peers, related to the Lindseys in the peerage. Derron Lindsey is also linked to Fortenberrys and Pratts, redoubling that bet.

So let's continue digging by asking the computer more questions. Let's go to Allyson Phillips page, to start with. The first thing we find is that Allyson is also 51, like Lakenya Riley.

	Allyson Brown Phillips WOODSTOCK, GA	51	Woodstock, GA Cumming, GA Miramar Beach, FL Canton, GA Marietta, GA Alpharetta, GA	William Riley John Phillips Ashley Hatfield Christopher Brown William Smith Bonita Brown Elizabeth Dowd Gerald Phillips
Verified name match:  Allyson Phillips
	Allyson Lee Phillips LIZELLA, GA	65	Lizella, GA Wildomar, CA Lake Elsinore, CA Woodstock, GA Carlsbad, CA Greensboro, NC Newport Beach, CA Fox River Grove, IL	Abigail Brotman Allison Brotman Andrea Brotman Andrew Brotman Daniel Brotman Emily Brotman Gary Brotman Maorei Brotman
Verified name match:  Allyson Phillips
	Allyson B. Phillips WOODSTOCK, GA	48	Woodstock, GA Byromville, GA Blairsville, GA	John Phillips Chad Phillips Mary Phillips Summer Phillips Terry Phillips

Or is she 48? Or 65? We seem to have two or three of her, all of Woodstock. The best two both have the middle name starting with B, and both are related to John Phillips but with everyone else different. So very weird. Allyson is related to Browns, so that must be her maiden name. We also have evidence John Phillips isn't Laken's father, as we are told in press reports: he is her stepfather, with William Riley apparently being her father. We confirmed that above at Intelius.

Laken Riley, her mother, Allyson Phillips and her father, John

Notice anything strange about that last photo? It's the usual paste. They are all looking at different cameras and are different colors.

The location of Marietta immediately suggests Allyson Phillips is military, since there are several bases there. Augusta also has Fort Gordon, being the home of Signal Corps. Alpharetta and Woodstock could also be off-base living for NAS Atlanta.

Instantcheckmate has changed recently, no doubt in response to my research. They no longer list aliases, which cuts deeply into my explosive findings. They have also added annoying pop-ups you have to click every time to move to a new page. Even so, I discovered Allyson is related to an Ashley Uno, who is related to Richelieus. Think Cardinal Richelieu, crypto-Phoenician. That's the next best thing to Rothschilds here. Not what you would expect.

Allyson Phillips celebrated the rest of her family being together on vacation in Colorado on Wednesday, the day before her daughter was found dead. “We had a great time with great friends celebrating Brinda’s birthday in Crested Butte, CO! Massages, skiing, great food and beautiful views!” the mom wrote along with a series of photos of her family’s vacation in Crested Butte. “Only thing missing was Laken Riley,” the retired teacher wrote.

What? Did her own mother just call her Laken Riley? Not, “we missed Laken”, but “we missed Laken Riley”. I don't think my mother has ever referred to me as Miles Mathis. If she was posting something to relatives about our vacation or something, she would just say “we missed Miles”. Would your mother refer to you in a post like this with your last name included? It reminds us of one of the biggest mistakes of 911, when, in the famous “Let's Roll” story of flight 93, Mark Bingham called his mother from a non-existent airplane before they rolled and said, Hi Mom, this is your son, Mark Bingham.

As you do. Because his mother might be confused. It might be her other son Mark that she had with a different husband, with a different last name.

Here's another glitch in the story. Jose Ibarra was arrested the very next day (wow, that was fast), allegedly being caught on camera disposing of bloody clothes (since you always dispose of bloody clothes in public, right?), and we are told he came into the country from Venezuela in 2022. He worked in Queens in food service and was arrested by NYPD for endangering the welfare of a child. So you can't say he has dodged all records. There would be a record of that arrest. But the computers have never heard of him. There is no Jose Ibarra in that age range in all of New York. 97 Jose Ibarras, but none under age 34.

That's another big problem with the story. They tell us Laken was killed running on the university track, and that she had previously been a state-class cross country runner, making highschool state finals in multiple years. Really? With that body? I hate to be mean, but that isn't a long-distance runner's body. I don't think that girl could make it around the track once.

They now have video of her allegedly running around that track, but the person in the video doesn't match that picture at all. Also doesn't match the picture of anyone who used to be state-class cross country.

We are told Laken was 5'4" and 115 pounds. Seriously? If that girl is 5'4" she weighs at least 130. I don't care how much she weighs, I am just showing you the inconsistencies.

But it gets worse. Read closely this article from CNN that now comes up first on a search for "who is Laken Riley". Notice first that its author is given as Thomas Lake. Lake writing about Laken. Cute. I'll just cut to the chase: this was written by AI. "Thomas Lake" is barely literate and sounds vaguely foreign in this article, doesn't he? The computer program has faked a treacly emotionalism, but plays it up too high, even above the usual heart-yanking propaganda we have gotten used to.

A white Lincoln hearse waited in the cold rain outside the church on Friday afternoon as the people who loved Laken Hope Riley gathered inside to remember a life that ended too soon.

She should have been running, or singing, or walking to the Circle K with a friend to buy a Diet Coke, or studying on her iPad in her ongoing quest to become a nurse. Laken had chosen her path at an early age, in first grade or perhaps sooner.

At age 22, she was almost there. And then, one morning last week, she went out for a run and did not come home.

With her departure came sudden and unwanted fame. Many people who'd heard of her knew too little about her life and too much about her death and its furious aftermath. Those closest to her were understandably reluctant to give interviews.

"In first grade or perhaps sooner"? What? No human would say that. And the computer hasn't even learned basic style and grammar points, since the AP and all other current handbooks would advise the author “Thomas Lake” to drop those commas between running, singing and walking. They aren't necessary.

So ask yourself why they would assign this job to a computer. This story must be very low priority, right? Except that it is has been on all the front pages for a week. CNN and MSN can't hire a real human to create three pages of copy? No, because CNN and MSN don't hire writers anymore. Like the rest of the mainstream, their job isn't writing the news, it is shoving it down your throat sideways. As we have already seen, this story likely came out of the military, with Air Force psychological operations the best first guess, and apparently no one in the Air Force knows how to write basic copy. So they assigned it to ChatGPT.

Check out this paragraph:

The story had gathered its own momentum. It became less about who Laken was, and more about how she died, and who was accused of killing her, and why he shouldn't have been in this country, and what the mayor had done, or failed to do; and what the governor wrote to the president, and what the president should have said or done, and how the former president would use her name in his campaign to become president again.

Yeah, that's what it's come to in 2024. That is how they are teaching the computer to write. Run-ons upon run-ons, justified with misused semi-colons. And the ole computer is sure keen to tell you this death is tied to the Presidential elections, isn't it? I wonder why that is? We will unwind it in a moment.

That's also strange. These guys couldn't wear a coat and tie to a funeral in the middle of winter? Just matching chinos and blue shirts, looking as sloppy as possible. I notice that her father/stepfather is not one of those guys.

Also strange is that we are told the public was welcome, with over a thousand attending, but the press was kept out. How does that work? All the press would have to do is take off the press badge, right, and walk in. It makes no sense in a real story, but makes sense in a fake story: the funeral was staged, with the audience paid, but the real press was indeed kept out, to prevent anyone real from seeing what I am seeing.

That is a lake near the track Riley was running. Some are pointing out it is a weird coincidence: Laken, daughter of Allyson, is killed next to Lake Allyn. But as I am showing you, it isn't a coincidence. The site was chosen on purpose, so that the agents running this could take another piss.

OK, so why stage this thing? Well, beyond the usual Men-are-Pigs, split-the-sexes fear creation that we have seen for decades, this was staged just like the computer tells us: to highlight the open border issue again. It is just another sign of the ongoing but mostly covert civil war being waged between factions in Intelligence/military. This event was obviously run by the pro-Trump faction that is trying to tank the Democratic Party. And why tank the Democratic Party, when just a few years ago—during the rise of Obama—Intel/military was completely behind that party? I have told you that many times before. It is because they were too successful, and they almost killed the Republican Party doing it. In those years the Republican Party was almost destroyed, with exit polling showing support of under 25%. This fake two-party “democracy” we have can't exist on those terms, since the whole point is to fool people into believing they are involved. If one party collapses, you are left with just one party and no choice, which means no reason to vote. If people no longer vote, their last connection to self-government is lost, and with it the pretense they are involved. So, with those warning lights flashing, the CIA and all other agencies were choppered in to re-inflate the Republican Party by any and all means necessary. That is what you have been seeing since 2016.

But not everyone is on the same page with that strategy, for several reasons. One, such drastic measures can cause financial ruin across certain sectors, and we are seeing that. Two, such a flip can be dangerous, since it can go too far, destroying the Democratic Party instead, and taking us to the same place in the end. What they need is balance, with the parties about equal, one party just squeaking by each four years, and balance in Congress. They need that balance in Congress to making sure it is a constant squabbling, where nothing ever gets done except rubberstamping of military and Intel budgets. So they need the heavy factionalizing, the hard split, in order to move the country right, but at the same time they have to try to keep it from spinning out of control. They need just enough revolution to get people to move, but not enough to get them to actually revolt in any meaningful way. As you are seeing, that has turned out to be a big request, and isn't working. The fake chaos is turning into real chaos, which can reverse on them.

Addendum March 10, 2024: There is a big kerfuffle on the new Kate Middleton photo being a fake, with the AP and other major outlets now admitting it and pulling it, but this photo of Laken Riley and her Mom is still standing for some reason:

I saw it published today with an update. That's a much worse and more obvious fake. The Middleton photo is very subtle and hard to spot, while this one is glaringly obvious. There is no real lighting situation that would generate a photo like that.

While researching this event, I stumbled across a similar one, that of Audrii Cunningham of Houston. She is the cute little blonde girl, age 11, supposedly murdered by a family friend, Don McDougal. I guess you already see the problem? No one spells Audrey like that. It is a signal this is another fake.

So is this: that guy was allegedly living in a camper on the Cunningham's property, given permission by her father and grandmother. Because that makes sense, right? You have a pretty little child in the house, and you let some drifter with a long rap sheet who looks like that camp out on your property, without doing any check on him? We are told no one suspected anything or knew McDougal might be bad. LOOK AT HIM!

So is this: the actor playing this guy is chewing the scenery, since we are told he appeared naked in court. Yes, really.

These people never quit testing your gullibility.

The swastika-tattooed suspect in the brutal murder of 11-year-old Audrii Cunningham refused to wear clothes for his arraignment – eventually appearing in court with only a blanket around his waist, shocking new video shows.

Don Steven McDougal, 42, was completely naked in his cell last Wednesday when shocked Polk County sheriff's deputies came to take him to his hearing, according to footage posted by ABC 13.

“Come on, [the justice of the peace] wants to talk to you. Where’s your clothes? Hold on!” a deputy says.

So we are supposed to believe these deputies didn't dress the guy for his court appearance? They didn't find an orange prison jumpsuit and put him in it? They just gave him a blanket? Right.

The main point of the story—that we are being beaten over the head with in the media—is that the criminal justice system failed: this guy should have been behind bars for those previous crimes. The usual: more prisons will solve everything, so pay more taxes to put everyone behind bars. But already we see that isn't the lesson to be learned here. Even if I believed this story, I would say the lesson to be learned is to not let some strange scary-looking guy with weird tats all over his body hang out with your pretty 11-year-old daughter. Did anyone ever think of that?

Next we find this:

Since discovering this legal loophole, Andy Kahan, director of victim services and advocacy at Crime Stoppers of Houston, has initiated a campaign to change state law.

We could have predicted that. A Kohen involved here. Kahan=Kohen. They tell you why this was staged: as part of this campaign to change state law. We see that every time. No one ever just gets killed do they? They always happen to get killed just in time to link it to some new law the Kohens are trying to push through the legislature. This law concerns adding “enticing a child” to the list of sexual offenses that gets you put on the sex offender list. What is “enticing a child”? No one knows, but my guess is this is just the latest attempt to scare you away from ever talking to a child again. They have been fragmenting society for decades, but recently they have accelerated the program, trying to isolate us all completely. Next they will make petting a kitten a crime.

They have been doing it with Joe Biden, you know. Every time he gets near a kid they accuse him of “perving” or something. While everyone knows old people like kids and always have. It is obvious why: old people are attracted to youth because they no longer have it. They want to drink it in before they die. So although I generally have no use for Joe Biden, I don't agree with this particular project to blackwash him. Leave the old people alone. Let them fuss over the kids, within reason.

I also remind you that political candidates used to “shake hands and kiss babies”. It was a cliché. At one point not so long ago in American history, people were happy to have famous people like politicians kiss their babies and hug their children. But now we are all wrapped in plastic and have to stay six feet back.

Like the Men-are-Pigs project, this one affects me personally. I have always had a special rapport with kids. They like me for some reason. With no encouragement, they like to crawl into my lap and tell me stories, as if I am Santa or something. Of course I find it flattering. I don't kick them out and tell them to leave me alone. But it happened recently and it was very uncomfortable for everyone in the room, due to current “norms”. Which norms are no longer normal. They are pathological. A little five-year-old boy crawled into my lap at a gathering and wanted to kiss my cheek, which he did. A pall fell over the room and I was almost afraid someone was going to call the police. His older siblings also took a shine to me, and—bored with the freaky grown-ups in the room—I spent my time chatting with the kids. For that crime I am now kept away from those kids. Or they are kept away from me. Apparently I was “enticing” them, just by sitting there and being charming. I used to think it was just because I have a cute face or something, but since I no longer do, it must be something else. I now think it is because I don't have the usual blocks up. I listen to them and don't warn them off with body language, so they feel free to be my friend. In short, I am not a stiff, like most other people.

It is sort of hard to admit this, since I know my enemies will seize on this and twist it to suit their own twisted agendas. In our New World Order society it is now borderline criminal to admit that kids like you or you like them. I mean, what kind of sick twisted individual would like kids, right? Pretty, fresh little souls, smiling and with endless energy, not yet jaded by the cruel world, which they know little of. No, you can't be attracted to beauty and youth just because it is beautiful, it must be some sexual perversion.

As I have shown you a thousand times, everything has been flipped. All that is good is now bad, and all that is bad is now good.

On the way out, I will briefly hit the Alexei Navalny hoax. He is the dissident guy that supposedly died in a Russian jail. Someone wanted me to publish their article on this, and I refused because I didn't want to give the story any legs. Navalny is another agent who faked his death, and it is being pushed to keep your eyes off other things. That is about all you need to know. Ignore it.

As you can see, you can tell it is all staged just from compiling web photos. That last one is from the Washington Post, the CIA's own newspaper. It is from January 2021, under the title

Kremlin critic Alexei Navalny says, despite facing arrest, he's returning to Russia on Sunday

Yeah, so why would Navalny return to Russia to be arrested? He wasn't extradited, he just went back on his own, because he likes jail I guess. In the article, he says Putin is trying to kill him, and he just got out of a medically induced coma after being poisoned. He has been in Berlin for weeks for intense medical treatment. He looks really good for a guy who just got out of a coma, right? A near-death poisoning, and he looks like that? That family sure seems to like poisonings and death sentences, don't they?
