

The Fake Maduro Kidnapping

by Miles Mathis

January 5, 2026

Update March 16: The mainstream is now admitting Maduro wasn't “overthrown” because of drugs, but because of oil:

The Wall Street Journal published a story Sunday about a longtime Chevron executive secretly working for the CIA—including by providing intel in the leadup to the ouster of Venezuelan President Nicolas Maduro.

According to the Journal, the former Chevron executive, Ali Moshiri, worked for the CIA as an informant since Hugo Chávez was in charge of the Venezuelan government. Moshiri stepped down from executive leadership at Chevron in 2017, but remained a consultant until 2024. He's now a consultant for Venezuela's state-run oil company, PdVSA.

You will say, “Fake? What's fake about it?” Well, everything, because as usual I am going to tell you what no one else is, on either side.

But before we get there, a bit of good news. Trump and Kennedy have dropped the childhood vaccine schedule down from 17 “diseases” to 11, more in line with Denmark, at 10. Although it needs to be dropped to zero, I have to admit this is a start, making it good news of a sort. But although 11 is still way too many, all the mainstream “scientists” and “doctors”—read “owned by Pfizer” stooges—are going ape, saying it will irrevocably harm our children's health—read irrevocably harm Big Pharma's profits. I heard NPR interviewing one of them today, some old guy who read the script like he is vaccine-damaged himself. Do you want to guess what his name was? Rob Stein. Ah, who would have guessed it: another Jewish troll crouching under the bridge demanding tolls for his witchking Albert Bourla.

Now, speaking of Jewish trolls, what about this guy Maduro, who thinks he looks like Stalin, laughing. He was probably giving us a hint there, but I am going to pass it by for now as a nod to the current thing.

But you know who looked even more like Stalin? Remove the mustache.

Sorry, but it's true.

I was surprised at NPR's reportage, since they are not framing it as you would expect, were it what it is sold as. Reporting on the current “trial” in New York, the reportage of the lefties at NPR was all slanted against the alleged Communist and Russia-ally Maduro. Very strange, but that matches everything else in this event, which is weirdness incarnate. But remember, the “public” NPR has even older sponsors than the ubiquitous Pfizer and Big Pharma. That would be Big Oil. Brought to you by ExxonMobil, like PBS, remember?

Everyone awake knows this is about oil, not drugs, for a start, so it is just an insult to intelligence to see Maduro charged with drug trafficking. None of the build-up to this made any sense, since it seemed to come out of nowhere and followed no logical line of reasoning. Then we saw Trump telegraphing this invasion, which isn't exactly the greatest way to wage war. That was just for you, the audience. Then we saw the incredible: the US Air Force actually bombing Caracas and kidnapping a standing President. That may possibly be against UN rules and the rules of international warfare, don't you think? So that makes no sense. Though I assume it was mostly CGI. Also makes no sense Maduro would let it happen, having no escape planned when Trump had been warning him for months. We are told Maduro was seconds from a safe room or house, but that is idiotic as well. He wouldn't have a safe room, where he would be trapped. He would have a warning of incoming aircraft and would fly out in some black Apache or other cloaked aircraft. Venezuela has radar just like we do, remember? They do have an Air Force, though you wouldn't know it by this.

For the next CIA joke, we are told the Air Force bombed Hugo Chavez' tomb on purpose. Really? So that was a high value target in this blitzkrieg? We are going to waste missiles on that, missiles that can go awry and kill hundreds or thousands in a big capital city like Caracas? Absurd.

And now we find Maduro in New York, in front of a judge, pleading not guilty. Wearing a prison jumpsuit and being led around by DEA. DEA? You really cannot be serious! In a real world, Maduro would refuse to plead guilty or not guilty, refusing to recognize the court, as he should. A US court has no jurisdiction over the President of Venezuela. He would have to be tried in an international court of some kind, so this is just a continuation of the theater. And the jumpsuit is especially droll. Kirk's fake assassin Tyler Robinson has been allowed to wear street clothes, but the President of Venezuela is forced to wear a prison jumpsuit? No continuity in the theater departments. They need to hire more continuity directors at Langley.

For more hilarity from the scriptwriters in Langley, we find the judge is 92-year-old Alvin Hellerstein, b. 1933, an Orthodox Jew. We are told Hellerstein was first appointed to the bench in 1998, so let's do the math: he was 65 then, age of retirement. Before that he was JAG, Army Judge Advocate General. More proof this is CIA theatrical again. Or should I say vaudeville. More research links him to the 911 injury trials:

The families had amassed a trove of internal documents and depositions. But none of the material was ever aired before a jury: Each of the 96 victims' cases filed in Federal District Court in Manhattan was settled confidentially under the direction of Judge Alvin K. Hellerstein, who oversaw all the cases.

Although that meant there would be no Sept. 11 civil trial, Judge Hellerstein, in his first public interviews about the wrongful death cases and settlements, said that he had no regrets over the outcome.

Hmmm. That's convenient, right? Convenient for the government, but is it legal? Nope. It makes no sense, since a judge does not have the power to settle 96 cases without juries. All 96 plaintiffs would have to waive their rights, which is not believable, and even if they did the judge could not seal all information, including who was being sued. Besides, there was no reason to lump all 96 cases together and assign them to a single judge. It isn't done that way. A judge cannot act as sole arbitrator of 96 cases, since he could not handle the volume of information, especially at his age. That wouldn't be a court it would be a Star Chamber. More proof Hellerstein is presiding over a CIA dummy court.

There is Hellerstein auditioning for The Untouchables. Later: He has now been caught sleeping during the trial, proving again what a farce this all is.

Maduro is a really terrible actor, too. Like all the mass murderers and serial killers we have seen, smiling and laughing in court and in the halls, unable to contain their mirth at the preposterosity of it all. I can't wait to see what he and his little Jewish wife do tomorrow. Will they wet the floors, rush the judge with a sharp pencil, quote Jesus or Hitler or Lizzy Borden? Will they recite lines from the Matrix? Will they hum Taylor Swift tunes? Channel Keely Smith and Louis Prima?

So what am I saying? I am saying this is all staged and Maduro is in on it. He always has been, back to the beginning. The leftists at NPR and other outlets are refusing to defend him because he has been such a horrible tyrant, and not even a successful one, driving Venezuela into the ground supposedly due to his economic “incompetence”. Right. But has it occurred to anyone that maybe, just maybe, Maduro drove Venezuela into the ground on purpose, at the behest of his puppetmasters in the US? Remember, Venezuela has the largest oil reserves in the world, far larger even than Saudi Arabia, so it should be an extremely rich country. It should not be possible even for an economic moron to drive it into the ground, with the sort of income it generates. It would only be possible if it were done ON PURPOSE. And why would Maduro collapse Venezuela on purpose? Exactly for the reason you are seeing: to justify de-nationalizing its oil industry and returning it to Big Oil. That has been the goal of Big Oil since Hugo Chavez nationalized the oil industry in 1999, returning the profits to the people of Venezuela. Can't have that, the billionaires and their lapdogs need their snorkels into the treasuries, or even better they need to take the profits directly, so they need to own everything, from oil to minerals to water to the rainfall and sunshine itself. That's why Gates and Musk want to block out the Sun: it has nothing to do with climate change. They simply want to charge you for turning on the Sun. It is about the last thing you aren't charged for. And you thought that Simpsons episode was a joke.

Remember that defining fact of Venezuela anytime you read anything about Hugo Chavez. All history in the English language is run by the spooks in Langley, so it is all slanted heavily against Chavez, simply because he nationalized the oil industry of his country. It is all about that and always has been. Chavez' Wikipedia page was written out of the offices of ExxonMobil, if not literally, then figuratively.

That is all you need to know about Venezuela, in one graph (dark blue line). Chavez took it from the bottom 30% of wealthiest countries to the top 15% in just eight years. That was due completely to the nationalization of oil, so that Venezuela got the profits for its own oil fields. Once Big Oil killed him with their patented cancer gun, the country fell off the map as the oil companies gutted it in retaliation for their losses in that short period. They simply punished the people of Venezuela for thinking their oil was their oil. Venezuela became one of the poorest countries in the world almost overnight, on a par with Kenya or Pakistan. Maduro could never have achieved that on his own. And where did all that oil money go? Did the oil fields dry up? Nope, they are still there, same as ever. Are we supposed to believe Maduro stole all oil profits every year for twelve years? That would make him the richest man in the world by far. No, Trump isn't looking for secret Swiss bank accounts, since he knows where the money went. It went back to Big Oil, as it had before 1999, but whereas Big Oil was at least profit-sharing with Venezuela before 1999, after 2013 it stopped doing that, to punish Venezuela for thinking it had rights.

I got that graph from Zerohedge, which it is using to head an article entitled

Charting Venezuela's Collapse: From Riches To Ruin In Ten Years Of Socialism

Some chutzpah, since, as you see, the graph shows the opposite. They focus on the ten years from 2013 to 2023 instead of the ten years from 2003 to 2013, pretending only the fall was “socialist”. But Chavez was also socialist, by their definition, since that is what the nationalization was about. The nationalization of oil caused the huge spike, which is the opposite of ruin. Venezuela became one of the richest countries in the world, remember, with everyone driving huge expensive cars. Remember those stories? It wasn't that long ago. So the ruin couldn't have been caused by that. It wasn't caused by the socialist Chavez or the nationalization of oil. It was caused by the death of Chavez and the planned collapse of Venezuela by Big Oil and their puppet Maduro, just so that they could write articles like this and tell you socialism will lead to ruin. The industrialist/capitalist fatcats have been doing this for over a century, and Venezuela isn't the first country they have gutted, blaming the gutting on socialists. In fact, you would be hard pressed to find a country in the world where they haven't done that, including this country.

I could say more about Chavez, but let's skip ahead to Maduro, supposedly one of his proteges. We find the same thing we always find: Maduro is sold as Catholic and working class, having been a bus driver, but he is the opposite, being a rich boy and cloaked Jew. He was never a bus driver, they just made that up. From his US Wiki page:

In 2012, it was reported by The New York Times that he was a follower of Indian Hindu guru Sathya Sai Baba and previously visited the guru in India in 2005.[53] In a 2013 interview, Maduro stated that his grandparents were Jewish, from a Sephardic Moorish background, and converted to Catholicism in Venezuela.[54]

Same song, millionth verse. So did his grandparents convert, or did they just pretend to convert, as these “conversos” have been doing for centuries? And is Maduro really Catholic, or is he just pretending? I think you know the answer. Maduro's son Nicolas Maduro Guerra is head of the National Film School. Hmmm. You don't say! Maduro's wife, Cilia Flores, was President of the National Assembly (like being Senate Majority Leader here) before becoming First Lady. She is also being “tried” in New York now. You may wish to know what she looks like:

Wow, an old bottle-blonde Jewish lady with a huge honker and pink/tinted glasses, who would have guessed? She was allegedly injured in the kidnapping, let me wipe a tear. Maybe she fell off her heels leaving the stage.

Wiki has a page for her, but conspicuously fails to name parents or give any normal bio. She, too, is supposed to be lower middle class. Right. Except that Flores is often a Jewish name. And what is her mother's maiden name? Something like Cohen would be my guess.

Maduro's first wife is also Jewish. How do I know? Her children are named Jacob, Yoswel, and Yosser. How easy is that?

Maduro is a big fan of John Lennon, and now you know why. Probably a cousin.

But still, my claim Maduro was always a mole or spy for US oil is a stretch, right? From his Wiki page:

According to Carlos Peñaloza Zambrano [es], Maduro was allegedly tasked by the Castro government to serve as a "mole" working for the Cuba's Dirección de Inteligencia to approach Hugo Chávez, who was experiencing a burgeoning military career.[67]

As you see, I am not making it up to suit myself. As I say, this is all too easy. A chimp could see through it. If Maduro worked for Cuban intelligence infiltrating Chavez, why not US intelligence? After all, I have shown you the Castros were also Jewish, and that Castro was another pretend enemy of the US and actor.

So, did Maduro fool Chavez, or did he only sell out after 2013? I am not sure, but my initial reading of the history tells me Maduro was always a spy. That last quote is almost decisive on the question in and of itself. They now admit Maduro had sold out to US oil long before the recent event, agreeing to de-nationalize. But for some reason that wasn't good enough for Trump or ExxonMobil.

That would explain why Russia allegedly wasn't interested in supporting Maduro: they never did. Russia lost this battle back in 2013, and the great alliance between Russia and Venezuela was never more than CIA propaganda. Maduro never called Putin for support, so we shouldn't be surprised Putin didn't respond.

Well, if we already owned Maduro, why the need for this latest charade? Simple: to pre-empt the very real possibility of a revolution there. Owning Maduro was no longer enough, since his script of destabilization and pillage had been so wildly successful, the country had been pillaged to the point of revolution. Like here, but much worse. They admit a quarter of the country in Venezuela has already fled, and the other 3/4s are just moments away from direct action. That would be a huge defeat for Big Oil, since it would be Chavez all over again, or worse, as revolutionaries or military took over and re-nationalized, destroying all their work since 2013. They are buying time with this regime change, hoping it will fool Venezuelans into thinking something is changing for the better, as apparently some of them are. The cheering on the streets may be astroturfed by CIA—that was my first assumption—but it may be genuine in part, as the people cheer the fall of Maduro. The cheering will stop very soon as they sober up and realize what has happened. When they continue to get raped by Big Oil, they may figure it out.

What about you? When will you figure it out? The same thing is going on in your country, though they haven't destabilized most of you down to a tent in the street yet. YET. I recommend you don't wait that long. It is a lot easier to revolt from a stocked house than from a tent down by the river.

Some will think I am selling socialism here, or defending it. Nope, I have no use for either socialism or capitalism. They are both huge frauds and diversions, since no countries were ever socialist or capitalist, and aren't now. They want you to think the choice is between communism or capitalism, but it isn't: that is just the usual Phoenician misdirection. All countries are and always have been run by the Phoenicians, except for a few brief and minor blips here and there. The Phoenician scheme isn't capitalism, it is covert rapine via false taxation, by which everyone is charged for a lot of goods that are never delivered. It isn't a scheme of capital investment, it is a scheme of investment in fraud, theft, and bluff, and a huge movement of assets from the middle to the top via rape of the public treasuries at all levels. It is also a rape of the Earth, strip-mining her of all value for the profit of a few, resulting in ruination, desertification, and general pollution. Everything that gets in the way of that is run over like a dog in the street.

That is what these people specialize in and nothing else. They do not specialize in governance, art, science, literature, or nation building. They specialize in lying, cheating, and stealing, which they do with a flair Satan himself would be envious of, did he exist.

In defending Chavez, I wasn't defending or promoting socialism, I was defending the nationalization of resources, and the sharing of profit among all citizens. That could be done under any form of government, and has nothing to do with what is called socialism in the US: mixed bathrooms, green hair, eating bugs, screaming Karens, vilification of white males, blahblahblah. That isn't socialism anyway, it is just a fake socialism created by Langley and Madison Avenue for you to hate on, to be sure you don't demand nationalization of resources here, or join the revolution in any other way. They need to keep you as an ally of the rich, and this is how they do it. Any expectation of fairness is destroyed in advance, by equating it in your mind with these astroturfed leftists from FBI and CIA theatrical, the various Antifa goons and Black Lives Matter miscreants hired from actors equity and outfitted with their black hoodies, cans of spray paint, fake pepper spray and styrofoam bats. They move you to the right by making you think it is your duty as a Christian and a conservative to support Israel, support the troops, support the regime, support CocaCola and Nike and Apple and Nvidia and General Electric and whatever it may be. If you don't like the status quo, if you don't worship the billionaires, you must hate America, you must hate freedom, you must be a dirty hippie and malcontent, why don't you go to Canada and kiss up to Trudeau.

But I don't hate America. I hate the Phoenicians who are pillaging her and the rest of the world. I hate them because I love the world, and I hate to see it and its peoples preyed upon by these parasites. They like to think of themselves as wolves, but I refuse to call them that. Even calling them parasites is a slander to the good parasite name. Being covered from head to toe with giant leeches would be nothing compared to living in a world run by these . . . personages. At least the leeches don't whip you mentally with their wet noodles of mendacity every day and half the night as they suck your blood.

January 11: I just noticed this at Youtube, in a still I have saved from a video today:

Does someone want to tell me what he is wearing on his head? Is that now standard prison attire in New York? Looks like a court jester's hat.

He just needs some bells on the end. They are SO effing with you.
