

Michael Rockefeller Faked his Death

by Miles Mathis

June 1, 2025

Before we get to the proof, I have to do the second of my triannual fund drives, or reminders to donate. As you may have noticed, I have no ads, no merchandize, no pop-ups, and no daily or weekly requests for support. I just add one of these reminders to my papers three times a year, since I know you hate being pestered as much as I do. The more ads I see on Youtube the less I want to have ads here. So you are lucky that way. You get all this premium one-of-a-kind content, while otherwise being surrounded by silence. The only things you will find on this site are my papers, my paintings, and my poetry. Beauty, logic, and truth.

Just click on the kitties to donate via Paypal, or if that offends you send me a check or anything else of value to POBox 335, Garden Valley CA 95633. I am fond of silver, especially Mercury dimes. Amazon giftcards are fine, or you can send catfood directly. I currently have ten kittens, so that is very welcome. I don't do Bitcoin or anything like it. That's it, we're done with that.

Like so many others, this one fell into my lap. I was watching OzzyMan videos at Youtube while eating dinner, when they pushed a "Twenty Missing Celebs" video on me. Since it is in my line, I clicked on it. I had a hunch it would provide something. It did, since I noticed this photo:

I guess you see it now that I publish it large and point it out. It is another very obvious fake. So I checked all the other photos of Michael with the Asmat Natives of New Guinea. Also fake.

Sure he's a white guy, but he's not a ghost. His shadows should still be dark, or darker than that. They tried to fix it by darkening and adding contrast, but it still doesn't work.

The perspective is also wrong, since the people behind are too large. Being further away they should be smaller.

Horrible, because you can tell he has been pasted in there, since everything but him looks like a backdrop. Notice the horizontal line about a foot above the heads, where something is glitching out.

Then we have that one, supposedly the last known photo of him, in the pontoon boat, I guess. Again, ridiculous, because anyone can now see that is a fake. His face is pasted in there very poorly.

Just so you know, Michael was the 23-year-old son of Nelson Rockefeller, and he supposedly died when he was eaten by cannibals. Absurd on the face of it, and the Asmat have always denied it. The story is that Rockefeller and a Dutch anthropologist were on a double-pontoon boat (dug-out canoe) with two Native guides when it overturned. The Natives allegedly swam for help but never returned. The two white men clung to the wooden boat for two days, when Rockefeller decided to make a float out of a couple of gascans and try to kick into shore. Kind of like at the end of Jaws, I guess. He was never seen again, and the story was floated he was eaten by cannibals. So it isn't just the cannibal ending that is absurd, it is the entire story. The guides were no doubt being well paid, and knew they would be better paid for a rescue, so there is no way they would leave two white men to die on an overturned raft just a couple of miles off-shore. Besides, that was a Native raft, so it wouldn't have been the first time one overturned. The Natives would know how to flip it back over, right? Or do you think they made rafts that couldn't be righted? Does that make any sense?

Here's another clue everyone has missed. It is admitted Rockefeller had been a private in the Army, specializing in photography. That's why he always has a camera. So we have two clues there. Can you read them? Well, for the first clue, you also need to know he graduated Harvard with honors. So they are lying about him being a private. If you graduate Harvard with honors, you enter the army as a lieutenant, not a private. They say he served six months, but that is also a lie, since your first term of service is not six months. It is more like four years. So he was still a lieutenant when he faked his death, unless he had already been promoted to captain or something. The second clue is that he was a photographer, so he was quite able to fake these photos himself in the darkroom. Most likely he had been tapped for covert ops, and being a Rockefeller he would be way too conspicuous. So they needed to fake his death and change his look pronto. That's probably why he is wearing glasses in all photos here. He might not have even needed them. But like Buddy Holly he wore them as a sort of disguise. If he got rid of the glasses and dyed his hair dark, he would be unrecognizable.

I also remind you that at the end of my long paper on the Kennedys (see p. 84), I showed Nelson Rockefeller also faked his death, and used several doubles even before that. Michael faked his death in 1961 and Nelson may have faked his in the same year, with the later Nelson being a double. That way Nelson could live a double existence, living some CIA existence with his son underground while phoning in orders to his double in DC. That's speculation, but what is not speculation is the fact that early pics of Nelson do not match later ones. It isn't the same person, so he pulled some kind of Steven Hawking on us. I believe Hawking died back in the 1970s and was replaced, but I now think the original Nelson Rockefeller probably didn't die when he was replaced by his impostor. Both lived on.